MORPHIC GLOBAL OPPORTUNITIES FUND

Monthly Report
May 2018

Fund Objective

The Fund seeks long term capital growth by investing in global shares and excluding direct investments in entities involved in environmental destruction, intensive animal farming, tobacco, alcohol, armaments and gambling. The Fund aims to have exposures in companies that are cheap, of high quality and where momentum supports the investment thesis. The Fund can also hedge to manage risk.

Portfolio review

The Fund rose 0.4% in May, ahead of global markets (-0.1%). Global markets fell -0.2% in USD terms, with a small fall in the Australian dollar proving the difference.

May saw markets rise only to then fall back, unable to break definitively in either direction. The politics of Italy dominated the headlines as investors feared the new coalition in Italy would reignite the Euro crisis of 2012.

Unsurprisingly, Europe was the worst performing market over the month (-4.0%). Emerging Markets continued to underperform (-3.8%) and the US market performed the best (2.2%).

The largest contributor for the month was the long-held position in Open House. Open House reported another set of excellent quarterly earnings, beating guidance. More importantly, they issued guidance for the coming year that is substantially ahead of market expectations. We remain holders, but to reduce market risk, we have started shorting Iida Group, which has rallied back since we closed the short in December. We believe Iida remains an inferior business to Open House.

The biggest detractor for the month was our long-held position in Japanese market research company Macromill. Taking into consideration the impact of Yen weakness and a recent acquisition, recently reported quarterly results were unexpectedly weak and management indicated that meeting their full-year guidance will be challenging. Our risk management framework resulted in a reduction of the position.

Outlook

The manifestation of market fears has shifted from Trump and Trade, to Italy and whether the European project is under threat. Italian bond yield spreads have surged, raising the cost of funding the country's debt.

"Markets tend to overestimate the short-term impact and underestimate the long-term impact". The coming months are likely to be less eventful than priced, but the size of Italy means that Greek-style negotiations are unlikely to end the same way.

The other macroeconomic trend of note since February has been the resurgent USD, driven by higher US interest rate expectations. One side effect has been the weaker performance of emerging markets in USD terms. The confluence of Italian uncertainty and a slight change in tone from the US Federal Reserve has seen US interest rate expectations fall which should be supportive of the Fund's regional positioning in Asia from here.

The Fund increased its exposure to Japan and Hong Kong over the course of the month. Reflective of the view that outcomes are balanced here, the Fund has minimal foreign exchange hedging currently in place.
